The Love of Christ...from Chapel to Asia

"Philip baptized him...and when [the Ethiopian] came up out of the water...he went on his way rejoicing." (Acts 8)

Derek joyfully proclaimed, "I'm so glad I came to Madison and was baptized at the Chapel!" When Derek came to Madison, he did not know the love of Jesus. After being introduced to the Chapel (and Jesus) through our English as a Second Language classes, Pastor Limmer instructed Derek in God's Word and baptized him. We connected him to Christians in his home country. Now, with these Christian friends, Derek stays close to Jesus through weekly Bible study and worship. Chapel alumna Stephanie Shinnick, who recently visited him there, said, "I have always thought that the international ministry at the Chapel is an amazing thing. Now I am more convinced than ever. Praise God for the work you are doing at Chapel. Keep teaching God's Word so we can watch the blessings flow!"

Daily Student Devotions & Their Impact

"Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light for my path" (Psalm 119:105)

Fifteen Chapel students at UW-Madison write "Daily Student Devotions" available to all via email. We asked some of the authors how writing these devotions—based on God's Word—impacts their daily walk with Jesus. This is what they said:

"Every day I walk around campus, I look for inspiration for my next devotion. In doing this, I have noticed my eyes have been opened to the incredible impact, whether positive or negative, that this campus has on my faith. I am learning and growing more every day." —Talia Spiegelberg

"When I am writing the student devotions, God works through my writing to not only relay a message to others, but also to myself. It allows me to sit down during my busy schedule and see the message He has for me that I may have never thought of before." —Philip Anderson

"I would call myself a 'selfish' Christian—I enjoy writing devotions first and foremost because it gives me another opportunity to dig into God's Word and let him grow my faith. As an added bonus, I get to share what I learn with others and hopefully watch them grow as well." —Zach Jindra

Please pray for these fifteen student authors. God is strengthening them to be His witnesses for decades to come. You can sign up to receive Daily Student Devotions on our website at www.WLChapel.org.

Chapel Donors Say...

"I always pray with joy because of your partnership in the gospel..." (Philippians 1:4)

Karen and David Maccoux

"My wife and I appreciate everything Chapel does for our children and all the students. As an alumnus of UW-Madison, I understand the challenges students face when they leave home for the first time. It's always reassuring to us that our son and daughter have both a place to worship and fellowship with believers at the Chapel. We also receive your weekly Chapel Notes via email and look forward to learning what's going on. We feel connected to the Chapel and the services you provide. As treasurer of our church, I realize how important contributions are to supporting your mission. We feel blessed that we can support your work. Finally, we appreciate how welcoming your congregation is when we worship with our children and look forward to future opportunities to worship at the Chapel."

Christian Faith in Action—On Campus!

"Do not merely listen to the Word and so deceive yourselves, do what it says." (James 1:22)

Chapel's mission is to "make Christ known on campus." Christian Faith in Action, Chapel's new UW registered student organization, does just that. It is dedicated to serving the campus community and students through acts of love. Last semester CFiA raised over $700 for a local food pantry and donated 112 pairs of mittens for children in need. With the help of God, they hope to increase their service to others in 2016 by recruiting new members and organizing more events. Please keep these students in your prayers as they work to proclaim Christ's love on campus and throughout Madison.
